As a historian and teaching artist, I am committed to uncovering the educational and artistic value of public art, mural art and classical graffiti art. My mission is twofold: to integrate these art form into K-Adult educational spaces as a model of authentic learning and to advance the history of the modern graffiti art movement as a field of study within college and university curricula. By bridging the gap between community practice and academic study, I aim to preserve and celebrate the cultural significance of graffiti as both a standalone phenomenon and a vital pillar of Hip Hop culture.
